

Cloth firm's top award

TOP notch wollen cloth made in Stroud has always been good enough for the Queen.

But now the high quality material manufactured by Winterbotham, Strachan and Playne is about to receive a new British Standard quality certificate.

The company, that produces famous Guardsman's scarlet for the uniforms of the household guard at Buckingham Palace, will officially receive the commendation on Tuesday.

The firm's chairman Mr. Peter Hardy will accept the certificate at a ceremony at Strachan's social club at its Lodgemore Mill site off Cainscross Road.

The certificate is for quality assurance, and will be presented by the boss of the quality assurance firm that checked Strachan's standards.

Strachans employ around 350 people at Stroud, and at Cam, Dursley.

7-9-90

Cloth firm's top award

TOP notch wollen cloth made in Stroud has always been good enough for the Queen.

But now the high quality material manufactured by Winterbotham, Strachan and Playne is about to receive a new British Standard quality certificate.

The company, that produces famous Guardsman's scarlet for the uniforms of the household guard at Buckingham Palace, will officially receive the commendation on Tuesday.

The firm's chairman Mr. Peter Hardy will accept the certificate at a ceremony at Strachan's social club at its Lodgemore Mill site off Cainscross Road.

The certificate is for quality assurance, and will be presented by the boss of the quality assurance firm that checked Strachan's standards.

Strachans employ around 350 people at Stroud, and at Cam, Dursley.